patients opened my eyes to the many struggles they encountered on a daily basis trying to manage their conditions. I could see the frustration and pain that the patients and their loved ones experienced while trying to just live and be well. Anything that can streamline and revolutionize patient care means less pain and frustration for people who are hurting. I want to be a part of making that a reality.

Describe how you are uniquely qualified to add value to our organization.

I recently graduated from the University of Central Florida's Web Development Boot Camp. It was an intense, six month, coding school that focused on the MERN stack (MongoDB, Express, REACT, and Node). I have a strong knowledge of HTML, CSS, and both vanilla JavaScript and jQuery. I feel I would add value to the team with my programming skills and background in healthcare.

Please provide any other information that you feel will help us in considering your application for employment:

I have a strong work ethic. I work very well in a team environment but I am also very capable of completing work individually. While my main focus recently has been JavaScript with a focus on React, I have experience with many languages, such as C, PHP, and Visual Basic. I know how the backend works. I believe that makes me much more versatile and a better front end developer.
